Arlington Residents Petition Against Proposed MTA Bus Runs Others Favor Heights Service- Charge Hudson Line Inadequate

A protest petition, signed by one thousand Arlington residents, was on Monday presented to the Department of Public Utilities against an application of the Metropolitan Transit Authority to operate buses to serve the Appleton Street Arl-mont Heights fast growing developments on the Concord Turnpike.

At the same time, in a lively hearing over the application of the MTA to extend its line from the Park Avenue terminal to Arl-mont Village and Appleton street, on the Concord Turnpike, four hundred other residents of the town just as stoutly expressed themselves in favor of the lengthening of the present bus route from Harvard Square, Cambridge.

Claim was made by Kenneth Hudson, owner of the Hudson Bus Lines, which operates the only service to the district at the present time.

May In December

Up North, children have been picking Mayflowers. In Kennebunk, pussy beds have been in full bloom. Everywhere grass is green. Cape-Cod-ward pussy willows have been seen in sunny meadow, in the springlike autumn days. In the woods, summer's last flower is left "blooming alone." It's not the rose. It's the witch hazel, child of the waning year. Late in September, the blue fringed gentian opens its "meek and quiet eye." Goldenrod and asters have been with us from late summer, and are among the last to say "Goodbye."

But the witch hazel bush, with delicately fragrant, honey-yellow blossom fingers, set like stars on the bare, brown stems now comes to delight our hearts, when woodlands are sere and leaves are fallen.

Its forked branches were often used by oldtime farmers as divining rods, in their desperate search forward. Long ago, the Indians discovered its value for medicinal purposes, and the bark is now utilized in many modern extracts. Thoreau says: "The witch hazel loves a hillside with or without woods or shrubs. I love to behold its gray, speckled stems." He speaks of awakening at night in the cabin at Walden, to the tune of a "snapping spind, and the fall of some tiny bodies on the floor from time to time." "In the morning," he says: "I found that it was produced by the witch hazel nuts on my desk springing open and casting their seeds across my chamber, hard and stony as these nuts were."

Why this joy in finding the yellow blooms of this late visitor, when all else is bare and brown?

Is it that in the midst of death, we find here a foretaste of life, a prophecy of the great yearly resurrection to come?

ent time, that his company would lose between 150 and 200 riders a day, if the MTA petition should be granted, and the taxpayers would end up financing the MTA trips. Hudson made the suggestion that both companies be allowed to operate in the newly developed section of Armont Village.

RING REQUESTS IT

The Commission was told that the service of the MTA had been requested by representative Hal-lam Ring, Arlington republican, for the residents of the area. Representative Ring said that there is at present no satisfactory bus service to Harvard Square from that section of Arlington Heights.

One Trip a Day

The lines now service a great portion of the town which is not near MTA trolley lines or the Concord ave. MTA bus line.

identified by a Cambridge girl and a 27 year old Arlington woman as the man who assaulted them. The former on last Tuesday night and the local woman on Wednesday evening.

As the two young women turned to leave the inspector's office after making their identifications, Gallagher, according to Inspector Breen, attempted to make a head-long leap through the second floor window of the Cambridge police headquarters. Breen stated that Gallagher put up a terrific fight with the officers, when his break was prevented, and battled the officers for ten minutes before he was subdued and pinned to the floor.

The capture was brought about by the keen memory of Patrolman McLaughlin. The latter it seems was riding on the same street car on which the Arlington resident was riding late Wednesday night, and remembered seeing Gallagher follow her off the car. He recalled he had seen Gallagher talking with three soldiers whom he left when the local girl left the street car. Upon receiving a description of the man who had invaded a Radcliffe dormitory McLaughlin contacted one of the three soldiers and learned Gallagher's identity and where he would be likely to be found.

A trap was thereupon set for the capture of Gallagher. Four officers, armed with their guns, took their places about the restaurant to await the arrival of Gallagher. Within ten minutes he came in and ordered coffee. As he started to drink the coffee, the officers closed in on him, and he surrendered without offering any resistance. The arrest climaxed more than a month of searching by the Cambridge police department for the human fly who has been terrorizing students all through the section.

Arlington Man Hold Up Hero

John Schaller, 55, of 24 Foster street, secretary treasurer of Jake Wirth's famous Boston restaurant, bravely routed two armed robbers recently in an attempted holdup at the restaurant, when he battled with the intruders and received four stab wounds from an ice pick wielded by one of the men as he battled for a gun held by the other. His heroic action saved more than three thousand dollars which was in a nearby safe. The bandits finally eluded him and escaped. Mr. Schaller was treated for his injuries at Boston City Hospital. A member of the Arlington Auxiliary police since World War II, he is also an L Street Brownie. A bachelor, he has been with the Wirth Company for ten years.

Golden Wedding Bells Ring For The Peter Bakers

Hundreds of friends and relatives of Dr. and Mrs. Peter S. Baker, wellknown and popular residents of Arlington for almost forty years, tendered the couple a surprise party in celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary recently, at their home on Gray street in honor of the happy occasion.

The home, beautiful decorated with seasonal floral tributes, was a mass of bloom, while from a center table covered with a delightful array of delicacies, with the punch bowl surrounding a huge anniversary cake, the centre of attraction, the many guests were served refreshments and coffee.

In charge of the arrangements were Mrs. Richard Baker, Mrs. Roswell Baker and Raymond Woodrow. Mrs. Raymond Woodrow of Princeton, N. J., Roswell H. Baker, of Auburndale, and Dr. Richard W. Baker, of Arlington, presented their mother and father, with a beautiful television set, which provided much entertainment and merriment throughout the evening's festivities. A substantial purse was presented to the couple from the duplicate bridge group of friends, as well as a second purse from the former members of the Assembly club.

The cutting of the huge anniversary cake, was the highlight of the occasion, and the honored couple acknowledged the kindness of their many friends, who remembered them with hundreds of cards and congratulatory messages as well as useful and delightful gifts.

I WONDER?

I WONDER who is the blonde who skips over to New York to do her shopping, after bidding her Arlington boy friend a casual farewell, then greets her New York boy friend with a fond embrace?

I WONDER if the "wolf girl" in a certain super market has caught her little Abner?

I WONDER if someone won't give Dr. Beaton a foot rule in his stocking for Christmas?

I WONDER if the police department won't put a sun shade over the traffic light on Mystic street and Massachusetts Avenue, to save the glare in the eyes of the drivers?

I WONDER if Father Shea, of St. James Church, isn't one of the hardest workers for the success of the coming C. Y. O. minstrel show?

I WONDER if it is good business when a liquor concern lends its name to a newspaper advertisement featuring High School basketball players, and fine liquors and spirits in practically the same breath?

I WONDER if the Press, shouldn't take a bow when a reader brings to its attention that the ARLINGTON PRESS is more truly a representative newspaper, having, as the reader recently pointed out, more news, livelier news and more complete news than any other local newspaper?

I WONDER if the Telephone Company hasn't officials with foresight when they suggested to local business men that now before the Christmas holidays, isn't the time to tear up streets?

I WONDER who dreamed of a hot stove blowing up?

I WONDER who was the lovely lady motorist who assisted in finding a lost mail bag full of Christmas mail?

I WONDER who the motorman is on the Arlington Heights run, whose melodious whistling and singing brighten the morning hours for his passengers?

I WONDER what wellknown Teele street couple will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary on Monday, December 13th with Congratulations to Marion and Walter?

I WONDER if the Service Department of the Arlington Gas Company isn't one department which lives up to its name SERVICE?

I WONDER when the town is going to make a parking space out of the old Peirce and Winn building lot on Mystic street?

I WONDER why Willie Hyland worked so hard removing that red stain from his shirt?

I WONDER who will fill the vacancy which now exists in the office of the Town Clerk?

Birthday Greetings To Mr. Evan J. Tyson

Congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Evan J. Tyson, of 76 Margaret street, Arlington, who last Friday celebrated his 89th birthday. Hale and hearty, Mr. Tyson has a most cheerful and friendly presence and is a veritable fountain of information on all sorts of subjects.

In another column this newspaper takes pleasure in announcing the opening of the real estate office of James A. Kenney, Realtor, at 485 Massachusetts Avenue,
in Arlington Center (over the Stop and Shop, where Mr. Kenney has taken over the offices formerly occupied by Dr. Hodgdon.

The premises have been newly decorated and equipped with modern furnishings in the best tradition of the up to date real estate
suite, where business transactions
may be carried out in privacy and quiet, amid beautiful surroundings.

Mr. Kenney will be pleased to receive his may friends as well as his new acquaintances at the new location.

Formerly for more than twenty years located in Somerville, he is wellknown here in Arlington. He is a member of the National Real estate Association, of the Massachusetts and of Boston, Boards,

also a member of the Middlesex Apartment Owners' Association, a active member of the Somerville
Kiwanis Club, and the Somerville
Chamber of Commerce.

One of the most modern innovations in the real estate field is the new picture screen display for the purpose of showing off the various pieces of property Mr. Kenney is handling. This projects the picture of the property on a small screen,
which adds greatly to the display advantages of any given piece of property, and brings it to the attention of a prospective buyer in a most dramatic manner.

Mr. Kenney resides at 15 Cliff street, Arlington Heights.
